PRICE THREE CENTS

THREE PERSONS ARE INJURED IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in two automobile accidents on the Lincoln highway west of Gettysburg Tuesday night and early this morning and a third car was wrecked early today at Beechertown. The driver escaped with minor injuries.

Edgar Woodward, 41, of Bigerville, is in a serious condition in the Warner hospital, with cerebral concussion, extensive lacerations of the face, a laceration of the right arm, contusions of the chest and abrasions of the knees, hospital authorities said.

His automobile ran into the rear of a tractor-trailer truck owned by the Mason-Dixon company of Kingsport, Tenn., at 1:15 o'clock this morning on the new Lincoln highway in front of Sylvia's restaurant, state police of the Gettysburg station said.

The tractor-trailer, operated by Alden John Robertson, 39, of Staunton, Va., was traveling west. Woodward's car was going in the same direction. State police said the automobile struck the rear of the trailer and ran under it.

According to police, Woodward was thrown through the windshield of his car and against the rear of the trailer. It took passersby and workmen 45 minutes to extricate him from the wreckage, police said. He was brought to Gettysburg in the Warner hospital ambulance.

Woodward's car, police said, was demolished. The loss is estimated at $1,500. Damage to the truck was estimated at $100. The truck driver escaped injury. Police said Woodward was alone in his car.

Mrs. Cardenti Injured

Mrs. Anna Cardenti, wife of Albert V. Cardenti, 327 Hanover street, suffered several fractured ribs, a laceration of her upper lip and abrasions and contusions, when a taxicab owned by Reaver's cab, ran off the road on the old Lincoln highway between Flock's church and Cashtown at 10 o'clock Tuesday night. She was a passenger in the cab.

The driver, Harold W. Keller, 50, of Gettysburg R. 3, Grandview Terrace, suffered several fractured ribs. He said he dozed at the wheel. The taxi was traveling toward Gettysburg.

Mrs. Cardenti and Keller were brought to the Warner hospital by Roy Coldsmith, 129 North Stratton street. Keller was treated and discharged. Mrs. Cardenti is still a patient.

MERCHANTS TO HOLD SPECIAL SALES' EVENT

With 20 members, out of approximately 35 in attendance at Tuesday night's meeting, voting, the Retail Merchants association decided, 12 to 8, to hold an August sales event and to call it Gettysburg Sales Days. The meeting was held at the court house.

Following an outline of the proposed sales days, given by Charles B. Bender, president of the association, and John D. Lippy, Jr., chairman of the publicity and promotion committee, members present were asked to decide: first, whether they wanted an August sales event; second, whether it should be called "Gettysburg Sales Days" or whether the old "Dollar Day" wording should be retained.

Suggestions were also asked for some other name should neither of these two designations be acceptable. A combination of both was rejected as "too long" for good advertising purposes.

Reports were presented on a card party held last Thursday at the home of Mrs. George Gilbert with Mrs. David Garfinkle and Miss Esther Geiselman as co-hostesses.

The cultural program on nature was led by Mrs. Estep and Miss Eileen Bushman.

Favors "Dollar Day"

"I was not at the May meeting, but if this was voted on and approved, I congratulate the committee for something new; on the other hand, why try to replace Dollar Day, which has been an institution in Gettysburg for many years?" Mrs. Sherman asked. "I don't think we should shove Dollar Day aside."

Mr. Bender explained that "we went around to many of the merchants and asked them what they wanted. A great many thought that Dollar Day was worn out, and had not been successful in recent years for a majority of the retailers."

Lloyd L. Deatrick said that "the name Dollar Day is misleading," and David E. Garfinkle, Jr., said, "I think we should throw out the designation 'Dollar Day.' " Mr. Lippy declared that "we don't care what you call it. We are trying to arrange a program to get the people into Gettysburg. It's up to the merchants to advertise and get the crowds into their stores."

Cities Promotion Work

In outlining the program, Mr. Lippy said that the Majestic, Cross Keys and Caledonia theaters had agreed to run trailers advertising the sales days and that colored posters would be used.

He said Lincoln Square would be used by automobile dealers for a display of their cars and an exhibit.

CLUB CANCELS MEETING; WILL PREPARE FLOAT

The Exchange club decided, at its regular weekly dinner meeting at Bankert's restaurant Tuesday night, not to have a dinner meeting next Tuesday, but to meet on Monday evening at 7 o'clock to prepare the float entered by the club in the fire company's Fourth of July parade.

Members were requested to assemble at Hennig's bakery garage, where the float will be decorated and stored until Wednesday afternoon.

It was also decided that club meetings for the balance of the summer will be held at Woodlawn park, Lincolnway West, that formal programs will be dispensed with, and softball and other sports replace speakers for these meetings.

ASKS FIREMEN FOR MORE HELP AT REC FIELD

Gettysburg firemen who assisted with the erection of tents and stands at the recreation park Sunday for the firemen's annual festival which opens Friday evening drew the thanks today of James S. Shenk, co-chairman of the celebration committee, and at the same time were asked for further aid.

"With the festival, which marks the 88th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, opening on Friday evening, a lot remains to be done," Chairman Shenk said.

A number of firemen are going to Westminster tonight to participate in a firemen's parade in that community. They will leave the fire engine house here at 6 o'clock, and return immediately after the parade.

Fire Chief James A. Aumen said, so that they can be on hand to work at the recreation park.

Chairman Shenk today appealed to all firemen who are not going to Westminster to report at the engine house at 7 o'clock to help set up for the festival.

Two Meetings Scheduled

Two committee meetings are also scheduled at the engine house tonight. Donald Staub, chairman of the food committee, will meet with women who have volunteered to assist in the preparation of foods to be sold at the festival and to work in the food tent at the recreation park.

Charles W. Culp, Jr., chief of the fire police, has also called a meeting of all fire police to plan the handling of traffic and parking at the "rec" field. Both meetings will be at 7:30 o'clock.

Carrier Boys On Battlefield Tour

One hundred and fifty newspaper carrier boys for the Pittsburgh Press were in Gettysburg today for a tour of the battlefield as a reward for obtaining new subscriptions in a sales promotion campaign. They came here from Pittsburgh by bus.

The group was in charge of Leonard Rocks, distributing agent for the Press. Guides who took the boys on the battlefield tour were Edward Shealer, Rufus Bushman, Walter L. Reynolds and Lloyd Hartman.

It was also decided that club meetings for the balance of the summer will be held at Woodlawn park, Lincolnway West, that formal programs will be dispensed with, and softball and other sports replace speakers for these meetings.

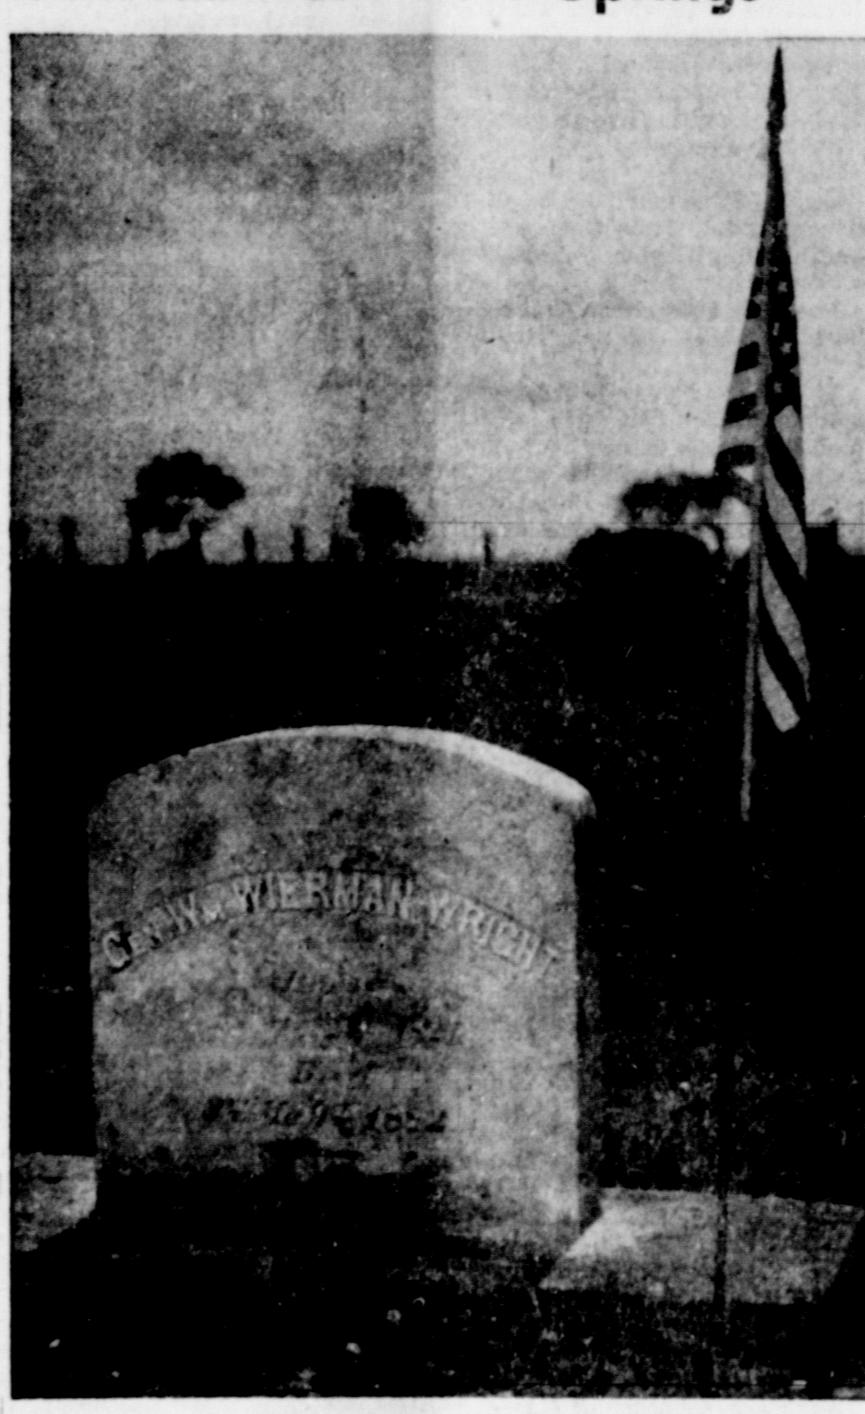

A report on a recent meeting of the Associated Civic Groups was made by N. A. Meligakis, recently appointed the club's representative. Two additional club members were named to represent it on the group. Joseph Rosensteel and Dewey McGeaughan.

Quaker General Who Planned Sherman's "March To Sea" Is Interred Near York Springs

Small American flag flutters beside a Grand Army of the Republic marker over the grave of Adams county's Quaker general of the Civil war, William Wierman Wright, in the Friends' old burial ground beside the Huntington meeting house northeast of York Springs.

Not far away are the ruins of "Woodburn," General Wright's ancestral home which was a busy station on the "underground railroad" a century ago while its most distinguished son built a career as a civil engineer before his brilliant military record.

General Wright, who planned Sherman's famous "march to the sea" and won great praise from his superior for the manner in which he performed his duties, was a consultant with de Lesseps as plans for

Lots Of Nice People Live Here

A good deed has won the admiring thanks of an Emmitsburg man who was in Gettysburg last week.

Louis F. Rosensteel, steward at the American Legion club in Emmitsburg, came to Gettysburg last Friday afternoon to attend a movie. The weather was fair, and he left the top down on his convertible.

But the weather didn't remain "fair." In fact it poured, all of which Mr. Rosensteel knew nothing about until he emerged from the theater.

When he got back to his car, he expected to find the inside ankle-deep in rainwater, but he was agreeably surprised to discover, instead, that someone, perhaps a "Boy Scout" doing his good deed for the day, had raised the top and closed the windows.

Mr. Rosensteel made another trip to Gettysburg Tuesday to thank his benefactor, through The Gettysburg Times.

This marks the second time such a service has been rendered by Gettysburg residents to Mr. Rosensteel. About a year ago a similar occurrence happened. Investigation disclosed that Carroll Zentz had noticed the top down and raised it to prevent the rain from damaging the car.

Country Club To Elect Directors

The supper committee includes Mrs. Robert J. Kenworthy, Mrs. W. D. Hartshorne, Mrs. Paul B. Ramer, Mrs. Fred Bryson and Mrs. LeRoy H. Winebrenner.

First event of its type to be held here, the show will display paintings, metal work and similar arts and crafts work done by the members as well as the work of similar groups at Oxford and Lititz.

To Hang On Clothesline

Paintings and art work will be suspended from the clotheslines. A special flower garden will be constructed by Cremer's of Hanover.

About 200 items of all types will be on display. Most of the articles will be offered for sale during the day.

Motion pictures will be taken of the event by Charles Knoss, of York.

J. Arthur Boyd, of Littlestown, former county commissioner, will act as auctioneer for the "grab-bag" auction at 2 o'clock.

Germans To Serve In "Treaty" Army

Washington, June 27 (AP)—Western Germany will decide to contribute military units to the proposed North Atlantic Treaty army, John J. McCloy said last night, despite Russia's "enormous efforts" to prevent it.

McCloy, high commissioner to Germany, said in a radio address that "the idea of neutrality seems to be less appealing as it becomes apparent that such a policy would play patently into the hands of the Russians."

McCloy said the Soviet is putting "every possible effort short of military aggression" into a campaign to make Germany its "greatest satellite."

News Collected At Random

Almost buried in the tangled undergrowth of Round Hill cemetery, two miles north of Hampton, is an old, discolored and loosened headstone marking the burial place of an Adams countian who was interred more than one hundred sixty years ago.

What is so unusual about this headstone is the epitaph which reads as follows:

"Memory. Samuel Hodge. Birth Unknown. Died March 17, 1783. Passenger. The strongest man that ever lived on earth, at last did quietly yield up his breath; this fate is sure to all to you and I. Come then prepared for death before you die."

Does the borough of Gettysburg intend to sell its motorcycle?

This relic of two-wheel locomotion which has been the property of the borough for 13 months, but of no service whatever, was purchased for the police department but only one cop would ride the iron horse, and he's no longer on our force. None of our present police officers have any use for the cycle so let's sell the bike and enrich the town coffers by at least $100, the amount it cost the borough.

A real definition of Americanism, attractively printed on cards, will be displayed in every schoolroom in the state if a resolution adopted by the Pennsylvania Department, United Spanish War Veterans at its convention here last week, is finally approved. The definition follows:

"AMERICANISM" Is An Unfailing Love Of Country; Loyalty To Its Institutions And Ideals; Eagerness To Defend It Against All Enemies; Undivided Allegiance To The Flag.

And A Desire To Secure The Blessings Of Liberty To Ourselves And Posteriority.

The above definition of Americanism was adopted at the joint conference of commanders-in-chief and national commanders of the Grand Army of The Republic, United Spanish War Veterans, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans at a conference held in the U. S. capitol, Washington, D. C., February 18, 1927.

The first celebration of the Declaration of Independence was not held on July 4. It was held on July 8, 1776, four days after Congress officially adopted the historic document.

Bells pealed throughout the day. John Adams' letters mention chimes, possibly those of Christ Church. As the rector of the church was a well-known Royalist, the chimes probably were "rung without benefit of clergy."

Not until July 2 of the following year did it occur to the Philadelphians that the celebration should be repeated on July 4.

He stood on a towering platform erected seven years earlier by the American Philosophical Society for the observation of a rare phenomenon involving the planet Venus.

Bells pealed throughout the day. John Adams' letters mention chimes, possibly those of Christ Church. As the rector of the church was a well-known Royalist, the chimes probably were "rung without benefit of clergy."

Not until July 2 of the following year did it occur to the Philadelphians that the celebration should be repeated on July 4.

VFW, 4; Elks, 3.

Moose, 11; Eagles, 7.

The Moose strengthened their hold on second place while the VFW moved close to a first division berth through winning Softball league games Tuesday evening.

In the opener the VFW nosed out the Elks 4-3 in a tight game, the winning run coming in the last half of the seventh inning via an out-field fly permitting a runner to score from third base. McGlaughlin held the Elks to six hits while Sachs yielded eight to the Vets.

The scrappy Eagles fought the Moose on even terms for three frames but eventually went down 11-7. The Eagles secured nine hits to their opponents' eight but lacked a tight defense. Olson rapped out three singles for the Eagles.

No softball games will be staged until July 9 due to the firemen's festival to be held under the lights on the field.

A league meeting has been scheduled for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Moose home.

Former Penn State Star To Run Abroad

New York, June 27 (AP) — Curt Stone, former Penn State star now running for the Shanahan A. C., Philadelphia, had to pack his bags in a hurry to join nine other track and field stars leaving today on a European tour.

The team makes its first appearance in Milan Saturday. Twelve other meets are on the schedule before the athletes return the latter part of July.

In addition to Stone, the squad is composed of Jim Holliday, sprinter; George Rhoden, quarter-miler; Roscoe Browne, half-mile; Dick Attiley, high hurdles; Arnold Webb, high jump; Walter Jensen, pole vault; Dick Doyle, discus; Richard O'Brien, shot put, and Ralph Taylor, 400-meter hurdles. Stone will run in distance events.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EVERYBODY'S SILENT CLUB

I think we can say with a great deal of truth that the 16th day of May, 1763, may be remembered as one of the notable literary dates in all history, for it was on this day in a famous bookshop kept by Tom Davies in Covent Garden, London—that James Boswell met the great Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Boswell at that time was only a boy 22 years of age, but you can imagine he did a deal of thinking, and perhaps did no sleeping that night, for his mind was filled with the significance of that meeting. I like to think all this took place in one of those silent, everybody's club, known as a bookshop.

Many of my long-time friends I first met in a bookshop. My first love along this line was known as the Morris Bookshop in Chicago, where notable writers of that time went to sit, talk, read and think. George Ade, Eugene Field, and McCutcheons, and others too numerous to mention. Not long ago I bought in a bookshop the first published book of short stories by the late William Allen White, and on the front fly leaf was written a most amusing record of White's visit to this unique shop. The book was presented to Mr. Morris. That fine bookshop man and his books have long been transferred, but treasures from that place now rest in many a man's garden of books, as they do in mine.

When I get a little low I can get quickly in gear again by taking an hour or so off to go on a visiting tour to one or two of my bookshop retreats, which I like to think of as Everybody's Silent Club. You don't have to talk with the owner unless you feel like it. You just take a book or so from one of his shelves and take a silent draught from its full-bodied soul! There is no place where you can lose yourself so quickly as in a bookshop. Many a person has found himself there!

There are no more honored or useful institutions in any town than its bookshops, especially its second-hand bookshops, for there you will find the loves and treasures of many a day long forgotten, but awaiting a ready mind and hand in one of these blessed places. It may be you will discover yourself in one of these temples of hope! Many have.

GREEN APPLE TIME

For boys, no greater joy can be than coming to an apple tree With no one near to intervene— Especially if the fruit is green.

To get a few if they have time Among the branches they will climb. But must they hurry, stone or stick Flung upwards always does the trick.

Though still unripe the fruit they take, They have no fears of pain or ache. Each stomach is a strong machine That can digest an apple green.

I had a marvelous stomach when I was a little boy of ten, But now I'd say an apple tree Temptation holds no more for me.

DON'T SELL GETTYSBURG SHORT!

Very frequently we hear, "No tour of Gettysburg is complete without seeing the electric map." We are sure that statement is correct, but let us go further.

. . . A visitor to Gettysburg should see: Where Abraham Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg Address, The High Water Mark, The Jennie Wade House, The Eternal Light Peace Memorial, The Buford and Reynolds statues and The Lee Museum. He should hear the John Burns story and have a guided tour of the battlefield. He should visit Spangler's Spring, Culp's Hill, East Cemetery Hill, The Cyclorama, The Lincoln Room, Little Round Top, The Valley of Death,

Devil's Den, The Wheatfield and The Peach Orchard. . . . He should be told about the cupola at the Seminary, the Old Dorm at the college, The First Minnesota, Stannard's Vermonters, The East Cavalry Field and Barlow and Gordon. He should be made acquainted with Siever's Virginia Memorial of Lee,

Borglum's North Carolina Memorial and The Lincoln Speech Memorial. . . . In short, we have so much to attract our visitors that, if every one of us who contacted a tourist would "go out of his way" to help that tourist understand Gettysburg "for what it is worth," we would very soon reach the point where Gettysburg's present facilities would be inadequate to accommodate the flow of tourists.

GROW SOYBEANS FOR HUMAN FOOD

Every vegetable gardener with sufficient space should grow a least a few short rows of soybeans for table use. Varieties are now available for serving as green beans, either shelled or in the pod, others as dry beans, still others for making soybean milk and flour. To the normal family menu this immigrant from the Orient brings fine nutritive merits for maintaining human health and vigor as other varieties have long proved their worth in animal nutrition.

Lily pools, ponds and other larger bodies of still water likely to become and kept safe by stocking them with fish, either goldfish or minnows. A pint of kerosene or a similar quantity of half kerosene and half used motor oil should be introduced through the toilet into cesspools and septic tanks every month from spring until fall.

Lily snap beans, garden soybeans should be planted every ten days to two weeks from early May until early July to produce a succession of tender green beans for all summer and autumn use. Of course, surplus plants may be allowed to ripen their beans, early as well as late plantings, to store for winter use or for manufacture of flour, milk or other processed products.

The live over winter as fertilized females, usually hibernated in basements, cellars, outbuildings, sewers, cisterns, unused rooms, attics and similar sheltered places. These and later broods of female adults lay their eggs in still water. Among numerous typical sites and containers in which mosquitoes are found in the immature or "wiggler" stage are: old cisterns, clogged eave troughs and down-spouts, watering troughs, old tin cans, flower urns in cemeteries, hollow trees, undrained swamps, still ponds, rain puddles left in low areas, automobile tire casings, broken bottles, lily pools, depressions in flat roofs, cesspools, septic tanks, rain barrels—or any other receptacle capable of retaining stagnant water.

The northern house mosquito seldom travels more than a few rods from its place of origin, although individuals may be blown a mile or more by strong winds. Usually when a housewife or other member of the family discovers more than a few stray mosquitoes around the premises it is advisable to look for the source within no more than a few yards from the scene of activity. Mosquito eggs hatch in less than a week under favorable conditions and probably within two days in warm weather. The life cycle from adult to egg to larva to adult is around 9½ to 12 days in late spring and summer.

Only the female mosquito bites. The male has under-developed mouth parts and spends his inactivity.

DONALD DUCKSUMMER PLAY GIVEN TUESDAY

With its speeded up action and revolving stage as its distinguishing marks, Adams county's first summer theater, the Totem Pole Playhouse, opened Tuesday night with its first presentation of the popular "Three Men on a Horse."

The revolving stage, said to be the first of its kind in use anywhere in the United States, eliminated time lapses for scenery changes. Action in the play switched by scenes from the Erwin Trowbridge residence in Ozone Heights, N. J., to a basement speakeasy and a hotel room, but there was no delay for changes in stage arrangements. The lights went down momentarily between scenes while the stage rotated to place the next scene in position.

All seats were "down front" in the theater where the eight rows of seats are arranged in a semicircle about the stage with the front row not more than five feet from the edge of the stage.

Play Well Received

A competent cast of the Karl Genus company, directed by Mr. Genus, who spoke briefly before the first curtain "revolved," brought enthusiastic applause from the audience for their presentation of the Holm and Abbott farce comedy about horse race gamblers and the verse-writing Erwin Trowbridge, who could pick race winners "for fun."

Kenneth Dobbs as Trowbridge gave an excellent portrayal of the leading role and was ably supported by Estelle Omens as his usually distraught wife; Al Hinckley as his blustering brother - in - law; Judy Price as "Mabel," gum-chewing girl friend of one of the small time race gamblers, and "three horsemen," Grant Marshall, Walter Eley and Leonard Rosenson, and the other members of the cast of 15 professional actors.

Gettysburgians in the audience recalled that Gettysburg Lions pre-

MERITS OF SUMMER MULCHES

Experienced gardeners who are not acquainted with methods and purposes of summer mulching and beginners who have never previously heard of the practice may easily confuse the measures with those of winter mulching. However, aims vary greatly between these two operations. It is important at this time of the year that every ornamental plant grower and vegetable and small fruit gardener understand the values of utilizing summer mulches.

Winter mulching is recommended almost solely to prevent soil heaving that results from alternate freezing and thawing, an action that often damages plants severely by dislodging their roots. In this role mulch is applied after the ground is frozen with the major aim of keeping it frozen until late winter.

On the other hand, summer mulching seeks several beneficial ends, such as: (1) Elimination of labor and expense of cultivation; (2) Eradication of weeds and grass and prevention of weed seed germination; (3) Conservation of soil moisture by preventing direct exposure of soil surface to sun and wind; (4) Retention of falling rain to reduce volume of run-off water and thereby curtailment of escaping surface soils; (5) Attraction of feeder rootlets into the richer top soil; (6) Stimulation of action of beneficial bacteria in the moister soil; (7) Protection of such low-growing fruits and vegetables as strawberries and snap beans from contamination with soil splashed by rain; (8) Accumulation of decaying mulching materials to turn under for soil improvement.

Numerous practical gardeners, most of them in an experimental scope, are reporting favorable results from summer-mulch-no-fertilizer method of vegetable growing. Many of these claim it is possible to grow more and better vegetables by solely depending on keeping the natural soil amply balanced with organic matter and workably moist under the protection of a summer mulch. The editor does not participate in the no-chemical-fertilizer controversy, but experience demonstrates the wisdom of wider use of summer mulches.

At first glance the prospective mulcher asks, "Where can I get so much vegetation for mulching purposes?" Of course, his question is a practical one.

All grass clippings serve in this role. Many farmers within economical hauling distance are compelled to burn old stacks of wheat straw to dispose of them. Immature weeds cut before they develop seed are excellent materials. Tree leaves saved from the previous fall are a liberal source of supply. And it is not by any means impractical to grow winter rye, wheat, oats, Sudan grass, rape, millet, barley, bluegrass, orchard grass or other cereal or hay crops solely for this purpose. For example, rye seeded in early September is tall enough to cut in early April for mulching material. In the meantime the top growth has served as a useful ground cover over winter. In fact, rye can be grown in

CITES SPRAY TO CUT PEACH SCAB

Peach scab is most active at the present time and wet weather earlier this month has favored development of brown rot fungus. County Agent M. T. Hartman, said today in a peach spray information letter sent to growers throughout the county.

Ornamental fruit moth has not been observed in abundance in well sprayed orchards, the county agent noted.

He added that European fruit lecanium scale is now hatched and where the scale caused blackening of fruit last year foliage and bark of small limbs should be thoroughly covered in the third cover spray, which should be applied as soon as possible.

For most growers the spray should consist of two pounds of 50 per cent wettable powder DDT and six pounds of a dry wettable sulphur containing 80 per cent or more sulphur. Where fruit was blackened last year by lecanium scale one pound of 15 per cent parathion wet-

A fine mist spray should be used on the peaches, Hartman said, and all fruits, twigs and leaves should be covered. The spray should be applied only when the temperature is below 85 degrees in the shade to lessen the chance of sulphur burn.

Forward-Looking Fairfield Makes Plans For Water And Sewage System

Progressive Community Was Founded In 1901 Near First White Settlement In County

Fairfield, which a few years ago could have been described as a quiet country community, has within the past decade become an industrialized, well-organized active community brimming over with plans for the future.

Its most ambitious project is scheduled to come into existence sometime this summer, if war-time scarcities do not prevent—a water and sewer system for the entire community.

At present the townspeople obtain their water from individual wells, and dispose of sewage through septic tanks constructed by individual residents.

This month, however, the borough council authorized the borough authority, set up to construct the new school in the Fairfield area, to also go ahead with plans for a water and sewer system. The ordinance authorizing the authority to proceed with these plans was passed June 6. Harper C. Hiner, president of the borough council, said today that the authority is expected to let bids, probably within a month or six weeks, if all goes well with the preliminary work.

Trader First Settler

The general area of Fairfield marked the establishment of the first permanent settler in the county, John Hanson Steelman, who traded with the Indians and who had his post only a few miles from the present location of Fairfield.

Despite the early settlement by Steelman, the section did not develop until 1801, when Squire William Miller decided that the green hills and broad and fertile valleys of the area would make an excellent site for a town. He laid out his plans on paper, built himself a house, and graded streets in 1801. It was not until 1817, however, that a postoffice was established, and the town known as Millerstown. It became Fairfield later.

Scene Of Indian Raid

The town was in a historic area long before the borough got underway. Just a few miles away the Bard family had been captured by Indians in 1758, during the French and Indian war. And Fairfield area men had gone in chase of the Indians, an unsuccessful attempt but one that led to Bard determining to escape and later succeeding in doing so. Bard also rescued his wife from the Indians. Others who were captured with them were less fortunate; some were killed while the Bards were with them, some were never heard from again.

Fought In Revolution

Some of the town's earliest settlers were heroes of the Revolution and

Fairfield Possesses Modern Fire Fighting Equipment

The acquisition of a new 500-gallon pumper on a Dodge chassis a little over a year ago placed the Fairfield Community Fire company in the forefront of similar volunteer organizations in this state. The truck received its tests early in May last year. It is capable of delivering five streams of water, and is equipped with booster tanks, portable pump, extinguishers, first aid and other fire-fighting and emergency aids. Photo by Lane Studio.

the earlier days. St. Mary's church in November, 1861, the ladies of Fairfield organized a "Soldiers Relief association," with Mrs. R. C. Swope as president.

Population Over 500

Through the years the community has remained active. It built its first public school in 1835. In 1872 the second school building was constructed. New construction has been a mark of the community throughout the past few years.

In 1920 it had a population of a little over 400, but in 1930 that had dropped back to less than 400. But within the 20 years since the town has begun to increase in size, and is now over 500.

An agricultural community up until about five years ago, the borough suddenly found itself turning into an industrial community with the coming of the shoe factory. The Fairfield shoe company now employs in the neighborhood of 300 people and has increased in size several times since its establishment.

Within the past few years as well, the area has grown, with new houses being added at the outskirts of the borough, extending it into Hamiltonban township.

New stores and new business establishments have been a mark of the community's growth within the past few years.

REPORT GOOD
BERRY CROP

Good crops in Adams county are the rule for cherry and raspberry growers this year. It is the third good year in a row for raspberry growers, a most unusual succession of first rate growing seasons, experts declare. This year's cherry crop is somewhat larger than last year's locally.

Raspberry prices are likely to be somewhat lower than last year, but large crops may mean good overall returns. Don Horst, crop supervisor at the C. H. Musselman company, refused to prophesy on prices but he pointed out that local prices reflect the overall market picture which also affects the price and market for canned goods. "But, I have noticed," said Mr. Horst, "that a good crop year even with lower prices as a result of ample supply gives a more satisfactory return to the grower in cash received on the whole than a year in which supply is short and prices somewhat higher. Occasionally, as in 1946, high prices and bumper crops may go together which is ideal from the grower's point of view, but it happens very seldom."

MALIK TALKS OF PEACE; CALLS U.S. WARMONGER

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 27 (AP) — Every week in New York at the United Nations the chief of a different delegation to U.N. is called upon to make a radio talk. His speech is recorded and then broadcast to the world.

Last week, just about one year after the outbreak of the Korean war, it came the turn of Jacob A. Malik, head of the Russian delegation. He made a speech that took 17 minutes.

Since it was a world broadcast, it was a wonderful chance for Malik to get in some more cracks against the United States. For almost the full 17 minutes he tore the U.S. apart, blasting it as a warmonger.

Then at the very tall-end — as if it were only a secondary consideration although no one doubts he had instructions from Moscow — he dropped in a couple of paragraphs about a cease-fire in Korea, a vague statement.

Question Red Sincerity

Vague as it was, the world pricked up its ears although it will have to wait maybe for weeks of talking among the diplomats before it can learn whether Malik's talk was sincere or just more propaganda.

It may have been strictly propaganda. In fact, the Russians may have felt themselves forced to pull a stunt like that in order to offset some American peace broadcasts that had been beamed around the world since June 2.

On that date Secretary of State Acheson told the Senate committee holding the MacArthur inquiry that the United States might agree to a cease-fire in Korea at the 38th parallel.

le if there can be a "real settlement" of the Korean war.

The State department's "Voice of America" — this country's radio voice to the rest of the world, both inside and outside the iron curtain, broadcast in 45 languages — picked up Acheson's statement and began sending it.

Limit Peace Terms

It's been banging away on that statement. So, in order to try to offset the effect of these American broadcasts, Russia through Malik may have decided to do some peace-talking itself.

And even though what Malik had to say came almost as an afterthought at the end of a 17-minute attack on the U.S., the world jumped to attention — although guardedly, with a wait-and-see attitude.

Acheson, although willing to settle for a cease-fire at the 38th parallel, told the Senate committee this country would not agree as part of peace terms to (1) admit the Chinese Reds to the U.N. or (2) discuss the fate of Formosa, which have been two sore points with the Chinese and Russian Communists.

Flat Statement

Malik didn't say either of the two points would have to be involved in a cease-fire deal. The fact that he didn't give rise to some hopes he might be sincere.

But for that matter, in spite of all the excitement about his speech, he didn't say very much except that Russia thought peace was possible. Hardly a remarkable statement since peace may always seem possible sooner or later in any conflict.

The Russians could have started the peace-ball rolling by talking directly and quietly with the United States and its Allies in Korea. Instead, Russia chose the Malik method.

After his talk, Malik stayed out of sight, maybe because he was ill and maybe because Russia wanted to wait for the general world reaction before making another move. Russia may have thought, because
